Dear <Author/Company Representative>,

I am writing today to request permission to reprint [and/or to translate into English] your book chapter/article, photograph, illustration, etc. from <Author Name's> <Publication Title> as "<Name of Article>," in Volume <Number>, Number <Number> of <Journal Title>, which will be published by the University of California Press.

The University of California Press will, of course, print an appropriate credit/acknowledgement line for your material that includes the title, author, copyright holder/year and any other pertinent information. Unless otherwise negotiated, we will assume that there is no research and/or licensing fee and that the use of your material will be on a gratis basis.

The University of California Press is responsible for disseminating < Journal Title> and its articles in various ways. The Press has standing agreements with educational photocopying, secondary publishing and abstracting/indexing services that reach many people and institutions that do not necessarily subscribe to the journal. Some of these agreements also encompass document delivery, CD-ROM, single article sales and electronic reproduction and distribution of journal content.

Therefore, the University of California Press is seeking nonexclusive, worldwide rights in all formats and media permitting reuse and reproduction/distribution of your content, including for promotional or review purposes, in connection with <Journal Title>. Granting these rights will not prevent you from publishing, reprinting or reusing your material in any way, since they are seeking nonexclusive rights only. If you do not control the rights to the requested material, or are not the sole grantor, please let us know whom else we should contact.

Please fill out the form below along with any credit/acknowledgement line that you would like included on the material and return it to me at the address listed below. Feel free to contact me with any concerns or questions.

Sincerely,

<Your Name>
