NEW CRIMINAL LAW REVIEW

New Criminal Law Review provides timely, fresh commentary and in-depth scholarly analyses on a wide range of criminal law topics, with a primary focus on examinations of crime and punishment in domestic, transnational, and international contexts.

"New Criminal Law Review is the preeminent forum for theoretical and comparative criminal law scholarship in North America. Several of the articles it has published are destined to become classics in the field. It is a must-read publication for anyone interested in the deeper issues at work in the criminal law."

MALCOLM THORBURN,
Faculty of Law, Queen's University, Canada

"The New Criminal Law Review offers a fascinating mix of articles devoted to various aspects of criminal theory and adjudication in the United States and abroad. The emphasis on comparative, transnational analysis, combined with the dedication to the highest standards of scholarship, will undoubtedly make the journal one of the most influential sources in the field of criminal law in this country and far beyond."
